

Please join us as Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake and the City of Baltimore host Obama Administration officials for the launch of the Urban Waters Federal Partnership. Baltimore has been selected as one of seven pilot cities across the U.S. to participate in the Urban Waters Federal Partnership. The national partnership will work to revitalize urban watersheds and the communities that surround them by transforming vacant and under used land into healthy ecosystems.

Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake
White House Domestic Policy Council
Director Melody Barnes
White House Council on Environmental Quality Chair Nancy Sutley
EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson
DOI Secretary Ken Salazar
HUD Deputy Secretary Ron Simms
USDA Undersecretary Harris Sherman

will discuss their vision for cleaner water and thriving neighborhoods in Baltimore and nationwide.
